

Aerobic Respiration

It is an enzyme mediated energy liberating catabolic process of step-wise oxidative breakdown of organic substrate inside the living cells into carbon dioxide and water with oxygen acting as a terminal oxidant. There are two types of aerobic respiration - common pathway and pentose phosphate pathway.